

CILTHK Luncheon Seminar: Container leasing and where are the boxes?

Since the introduction of containerisation in the 60s, the binding between port and vessel was gradually fading out. They need a piece of mutual equipment between them to perform the operations - a container box.

The number of boxes required for a simple ORIDES route requires three sets of containers equal to the vessel carrying capacity. The world trade volume will cause those purchased containers to fluctuate between deficit and surplus over the various port location.

The container leasing industry is one of the alliances that help liner shipping solve the container's problem. The seminar will give the latest situation in the leasing industry that affecting the current liner performance.
