Any asset has a lifespan and eventually gets old and needs replacing. In principle, the decision of equipment renewal can be made by locating the optimum total cost when the ownership cost and the operating cost hit the minimum. It becomes an issue when the equipment is approaching the end of its design life. Along its operations and maintenance process, the asset condition needs to be inspected at intervals to ensure the capability fit for service. Asset life assurance implies to 3 aspects: (i) the capability of serving for coming years until the expiry of the design life; (ii) the condition deteriorated that needs mitigation and (iii) the useful life is beyond the design life that leads to a review of life extension.
